Sir:

On April 2, 2007, the Office issued a Notification of Missing Requirements alleging that the translation that was submitted upon entry into the national phase was defective. The alleged defect is that the number of claims in the International Application and the number of claims in the translation are not the same. This position by the Office is respectfully traversed.

As a point of fact, it is submitted that the number of claims in the International Application and the number of claims in the translation are the same. The translation submitted June 12, 2006 includes 12 claims. The International Application as filed included 12 claims. WIPO has acknowledged that the publication of the International Application only included claims numbered 1-8, and apparently did not include claims 9-12 as originally submitted. Attachment A represents a response from WIPO regarding this issue after inquiry by Applicant. WIPO indicates that it will take two months in order to publish the revision so as to correctly publish the International Application.

In addition, the Office is directed to Attachment B. This attachment is a printout of the claims from the priority application of record, the application having been originally filed in Japan. As can be seen from the two pages, they include claims 1-12.

The Office is further directed to Attachment C, which is the English language translation of the Written Opinion of the International Searching Authority. Clearly the International Searching Authority understands that there are 12 claims present.

The Office is further directed to Attachment D, which is a printout of the page including claims 1-8 of the International Application. It can be seen that claims 1-7 are completed by a period (represented by a small circle in the Japanese text). It can further be seen that the remainder of claim 8 is missing, which becomes more apparent from a comparison of claim 8 of Attachment B with claim 8 of Attachment D. Thus, clearly the claim can be seen to be intended to continue on to a next and subsequent page.

From the above, it is respectfully submitted to be clear that the error in the present application is not on the part of Applicants, but on the part of WIPO in the publication of the application. Claims 1-12 of the English translation do in fact correspond to claims 1-12 as submitted in the International Application and as in fact examined in the international phase.

Accordingly, withdrawal of the Notification is respectfully requested.

Respectfully submitted,

Toshiyasu WATANABE
